ORDER BLOCKS ENFORCEMENT FOR PRESENT

Standard Oil Gets Temporary Injunction In Fight Against Closing Hour Set-up.

FINAL HEARING LATER

Company's Attorneys Charge City Ordinance Contrary To Constitution.

An injunction temporarily restraining the city of Mansfield from enforcing its new curfew ordinance for gasoline filling stations was granted at noon today by Common Pleas Judge C H. Huston

Action against the week-old ordinance was taken less than two hours after a petition for an injunction was filed in Common pleas court by the Standard Oil Company of Ohio which operates filling stations in the city The oil company contends the ordinance is unconstitutional

In granting the injunction, Judge Huston made no comment on the ordinance. He set April 13 fo rhearing of the case on its merits.

The ordinance, signed into law last Friday afternoon by Mayor W. J. Locke, would require filling stations to close at 7 p. m. weekdays and 1 p m. on Sunday. They would be permitted to open at 7 a. m. daily and Sunday City council passed the ordinance last Tuesday night by a 6-to-2 vote.

In his argument before the court today, City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner asked that the ordinance be permitted to stand until the next meeting of city council, adding that he understood there would be no attempt to make arrests to enforce the measure.

Judge Huston set the hearing on the motion for a permanent injunction for April 13 at Wagner's request since that date will give council an oportunity to amend the measure at its April meeting.

The city solicitor said amendments to the ordinance are being considered by council and city officials and he added that it is likely that action will be taken at the next meeting

Wagner told the court there was a chance that a "gentleman's agreement" could be effected between the city and the gasoline dealers which would enable the

CUT DELIVERIES OF MILK IN CITY

Two Dairies To Start Every Other Day Plan In Order To Save Tires, Trucks.

Hundreds of Mansfield residents prepared today to have milk deliveries made on a curtailed schedule as two major distributing dairies announced that they would make deliveries every other day to save their tires and trucks

Officials of the Isaly Dairy and Page Dairy companies informed customers that starting Wednesday they will receive double orders of dairy products every other day including Sunday for the duration of the war in a plan to conserve gasoline, oil, tires and equipment.

Both companies told its customers that the delivery system would be maintained as long as their equipment permits or until there is no need to conserve any vital materials saved by this plan.

Other dairy-operators said that they were also considering the adoption of the curtailed delivery plan

Page and Isaly officials told their customers that the products would be as fresh as ever because on the days when no milk is being delivered in one half of the city, the other half will receive double orders

Start Organizing Defense In Mansfield Precincts

Civilian Committee Launches Program Tomorrow to Assign 1,250 Persons to Specific Defense Roles.

Mansfield's civilian defense organization today prepared to launch that phase of the defense organization which for the first time, will enlist every able-bodied citizen of Mansfield in the defense program.

The program as a starter will assign approximately 1 250 persons to definite roles in defense. This will be amplified later to the point where every able-bodied resident of Mansfield will have his own job to do if and when actual war comes to Mansfield.

In brief, the program calls for at least 100 individual geographical units for air raid protection in the city. The present precinct set-up will be used, with each precinct being divided into at least two sectors.

Municipal Judge G E Kalbfleisch, civilian defense chairman, announced a meeting will be held at the American Legion home at 7 30 p m. tomorrow to perfect the organizational set-up in the First ward Steps will be taken promptly to organize each of the other wards in the city to hasten the time when the entire city will be organized for defense.

Summoned to the meeting are the central committeemen—both Democratic and Republican — from each of the 12 precincts in the first ward Also present will be Kalbfleisch, Sam Fox chairman of the defense council's subcommittee on air raid protection and as such the city's chief air raid warden, and Ralph A Hughes, warden in charge of the protective machinery for the first zone, which comprises the first ward.

According to plans outlined today by Kalbfleisch, each precinct will be divided into two

Last Day Rush On At City's Income Tax Payment Office

The greatest stream of income tax returns in Ohio history poured into federal internal revenue district offices in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Toledo today as thousands of citizens sought to pay without penalty before the Monday midnight deadline.

In Mansfield, the internal revenue office was handling a heavy last-minute rush today after remaining open to receive returns Sunday for the first time in history. The office will remain open until midnight tonight.

No consolidated report on the number of returns or total of collections will be available for some time. However, it was estimated in Columbus by Harry F. Busey, collector of internal revenue, that the number of Ohio returns would pass previous highs by 500,000 or more.

Collections at this time do not represent the full year's levy on 1941 incomes, as many individuals and corporations, especially those who owe large sums, pay the tax quarterly in order to keep interest bearing funds intact as long as possible.

Other installments will be due June 15, Sept. 15, and Dec. 15. The number of delinquencies is not expected to be large.

Those who fail to make their returns on time are subject to a penalty of 25 per cent of their tax.

The levy this year includes the 6 per cent surtax for the nation's war program for the first time and at all offices, federal men said the people were cheerfully paying their share of the war's cost.

This year's taxes, heavy as they are, are only the beginning. Congress already has authorized more than $140,000,000,000 in war expenditures, and the treasury is urging that income taxes of most Americans be doubled when they pay next year on present earnings.

STAGE SET FOR DRAFT LOTTERY

Stimson To Draw First Name From Famous Fish Bowl at 6 P. M. Tuesday.

The nation's first war-time draft lottery in 24 years will begin at 6 p m. (EWT) tomorrow when Secretary of War Henry L Stimson draws the first of the 7,000 new numbers from the now-famous goldfish bowl in Washington.

The lottery, the sixth in American history, will determine the order in which the Feb. 16 selective service registrants will be called up.

As in the preceding two lotteries held under the selective service act of 1940, officials will use the goldfish bowl that originally saw service in World War No 1 when Woodrow Wilson drew the number of the nation's first draftee for service in that war.

The names and serial numbers of Richland county's 5 200 registrants in the 20-44 age class of the February registration were published in Sunday's News-Journal Tomorrow night News-Journal staff members will be on the job checking these serial numbers against the order numbers as they are drawn in Washington

On Wednesday, the order number for each serial number will be published in The News-Journal Thus a registrant who learned his serial number from the list published Sunday may obtain his order number in Wednesday's issue.

N-J Photographer Receives Award In Photo Contest

The picture was made during a tense moment in a football game, and depicted the varied expressions on the faces of Coach Paul Snyder of Mansfield High school and members of the squad sitting on the bench with him.

Walters won a blue ribbon for the shot, and the picture will be entered in a national contest sponsored by the Associated Press.

RESIGNATIONS IN WPB STIR PROBE DEMAND

Leather Goods Division Head Quits, Asserts Industries Move Too Slowly.

SENATE ACTION FORESEEN

Committee Urged To Inquire Into Situation Touched Off By Officials.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Demands for an investigation of the war production board rumbled through congress today as Robert R Guthrie declared that "continued resistance within" the WPB and not from industry caused him to resign as chief of the textile clothing and leather goods division

Guthrie, whose two chief assistants walked out with him Saturday, praised industrial cooperation in his war conversion efforts, but declared that the "indecision, the resistance and procrastinations of representatives of the affected industries now working with the war production board" forced his resignation

"I felt that we could no longer afford the risk of 'too little or too late,'" he said "For these efforts I was labelled 'hostile to industry'"

The three resignations touched off calls for the senate defense investigating committee, headed by Sen. Truman (D.), Mo., to launch an investigation and call Guthrie, and the other two officials, George P. Doherty, his executive assistant and Marshall Hale, deputy chief of the division.

There were also reports that the resignations presaged a new shakeup the WPB, headed by Donald M Nelson and created by President Roosevelt in January to supplant the old supply, priorities and allocations board These were strengthened by the announcement that a new staff of 25 members had been appointed to the bureau of priorities of the WPB division of industry operations Nineteen of the officials were shifted from other positions in the board

Sen Mead (D) N Y, a member of the Truman committee, said that the group should take action While declaring that "there must be two sides to the story" Mead

TOLL MOUNTS

Report 150,000 Greeks Die of Starvation, Exposure.

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — Starvation exposure and executions have taken a toll of 150,000 to 200 000 lives in Greece in less than a year of German-Italian occupation. Greek officials here estimate.

Unless conditions improve half of Greece's population of 7,000,000 may be dead before the war ends, these sources declared.

They said their estimates on the number of deaths were based on information obtained from persons escaping from the country and took into account only well-authenticated accounts.

The peak of suffering was said to have been reached in February, when an intense cold wave combined with lack of food and water to boost deaths in the Athens area alone to 1,500 daily.

Increasing Air Strength Slows Up Jap Attacks

American Pilots Join With Aussies In Raids Over Enemy Bases; British Score Surprise Victory In Battle For Burma.

BULLETIN

MELBOURNE—(UP)—Allied air offensive strength appeared to be increasing in the southwest Pacific today following sharp blows against Japanese invaders north of Australia and a comparatively ineffectual raid by 14 enemy bombers on Port Darwin.

(By International News Service)

Australian and American air fighters were disclosed today to be seizing the initiative at every opportunity to slow down or halt Japanese preparations for an invasion of Australia.

In other theaters of war the British ground forces have struck a successful blow in Burma, the stalemate continues in the Philippines, and in far-off Russia the Germans are struggling desperately to halt the Russian military machine which threatens to crush them.

But it was on Australia that the eyes of the world turned today as that great continent not only made ready to meet any invasion attempt but strove to disconcert enemy invasion plans with smashing blows from the air.

American flyers were actively supporting their Australian brothers-in-arms with similar raids on Japanese-occupied bases in the south Pacific Australian flyers winged over the Japanese airdrome at Dili on Portuguese Timor, 400 miles northwest of Port Darwin and effectively bombed that base.

An official Australian communique, citing the raid on Dili, said that at the same time American and Australian pilots were smashing from the air at Rabaul and Gasmata on the island of New Britain. Flaming wreckage and runways pockmarked with hits were observed. The war department at Washington added to the story of increasing American participation today by listing the exploits of a single American flying fortress

Last Friday, the communique said, this lone bomber roared over the Japanese-occupied airdrome at Rabaul, ripped up the runways with bombs and destroyed at least two enemy planes on the ground. Its job done, the American plane returned undamaged to its undisclosed base.

The Japanese meanwhile bombed the group of islands near Cape York, northernmost tip of Australia, but little damage resulted. At least 30 enemy planes were said to have taken part in recent attacks on Port Moresby and the

SLOWED UP: Hitler Now Puts Time For Victory In Summer

(By United Press)

LONDON—Observers interpreted Adolf Hitler's promise to the German people that Russia would be defeated "in the forthcoming summer" today as a significant admission of the effectiveness of the Soviet winter campaign.

"One thing we know," Hitler said yesterday in a war dead memorial day speech in Berlin. "The bolshevist hordes which did not succeed in defeating the German and allied soldiers during this winter will be defeated and annihilated by us in the forthcoming summer."

It was pointed out that Hitler had thus postponed again the promised defeat of the Russians which he had predicted would come with the widely heralded spring campaign of the German armies He had predicted a quick collapse for the Russians when he attacked them last year His latest "postponement" supported Soviet claims of winter victories with huge Nazi losses

"Behind us is a year, not only of the hardest battles in world history," he said, "but of the severest trials for our peoples We had to face not only the enemy's arms and the apparently unlimited masses of the enemy, but also a winter such as been unknown for 140 years. What is yet to come can only be easier than what is behind."

Hitler included his customary tirade against "the Jews, Marxists and capitalists" who, he said, were responsible for the war.

"We know," he said, "that in 1935 and 1936 in England and France, but particularly in the United States, the really influential Jewish quarters and the political leaders dependent upon them had decided upon a new war.

"How the rest of the world runs its life is a matter of indifference to the German people, but the attempt by a non-continental power to interfere in the internal

TRAGEDY: Officer Tells Of Battle For Life By Seamen

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—In cold black and white of naval records today is the tragic tale of how scores of sailors met death in a howling gale with land a mere 60 yards away when the American destroyer Truxtun was lost off Newfoundland Feb 18

Details of the grim disaster which took the lives of 97 of the 125 officers and crew when the ship was hurled aground near St Lawrence harbor and pounded to destruction by giant waves, were given in the navy's official report on the destroyer loss.

The report was based on the eye-witness account of the Truxtun's only surviving officer, Ensign William J. Maddocks, 22, of New York. He reported that after the destroyer had been driven aground, a boat was lowered but it was smashed against the ship's sides.

Early next morning land was discovered only 60 yards off the port beam, but the rocks would have made landing hazardous at this point and it was decided to try to get ashore at a small beach about 200 yards distant.

Maddocks said that as the ship began to take on water, several rafts were dropped after much difficulty and some of the men paddled to safety. A line was first made fast to the destroyer.

One survivor ran to a nearby mining camp for aid and soon about 100 men appeared on the cliffs helping survivors to the top and a plane circled the ship. By noon the destroyer started to break in two and those still aboard were cautioned to keep moving so they would not freeze.

Empty ammunition boxes were thrown overboard in the hope that

Remember Without Wanting + + +

CHAPTER XXVIII

Judith could not trust herself to return to the dining room at once. She was shaking so and she felt as though she were going to laugh and cry simultaneously. Passing her hand over her moist forehead, she thought, "That was Max, really Max . . . after all this time. Am I happy? I don't know . . . I don't know. And all the things I thought I'd say to him I didn't say at all. I'm doing what he wants me to do again. I'm going to meet him at 4:30 and the ship sails at five . . . I won't be on the ship. How can I disappoint the others? But I shall . . . I'll disappoint them and meet Max. I'll risk everything to meet him. "Did my mother and father hear our odd conversation? If they did, it's the first time they have ever heard Max's name"

She returned to the dining room grateful that the descending twilight made the room dim She took her place again, knowing she could eat nothing She knew, too, because their faces always betrayed them, that they had heard and were puzzled and distressed.

It had to be said, but she did not know how to begin

"That was an old friend, someone I used to know in New York" Feeling guilty and ashamed, she went on, "He's just come back from South America and probably won't be here long. He wants to see me Saturday in New York . . . I'll take a train to Quebec and meet the others there."

"But Judith," her mother protested. 'They will be so . . ."

Her father interrupted. "Couldn't you see your friend earlier in the day and not miss the ship?"

"I'm afraid it's one of those things that will go far into the night I'm sorry. Everything always happens at once." They were telling themselves, she knew, that they were parents who did not interfere with their daughter's life. They were withholding their protests, their advice, their fears and perhaps their thoughts that she was being unfair to her friends and to her sister

So they said nothing more and she was relieved when dinner was over and she could leave and go to her room Nor could she find escape there from guilt and shame Yet the instant Max came to her mind, the living breathing Max looking at her once more across a table and speaking to her, she knew that there was nothing she would not do for him.

Presently her mother called from downstairs "Judith! Your father and I are going over to the Hallams dear When Bessie leaves lock the front door, please".

Call Harriet and Katherine, she thought. You must tell Stephen, too . . . Friday night. Two nights in which to prepare herself for telling him She could forget him tonight. But could she? What would he say? How would he look? Yes, forget him tonight . . . forget him.

She walked about the room several minutes before calling Harriet.

"Packing tonight?" Harriet asked excitedly. "This is the first real vacation Larry and I have had since we've been married You don't know what it means to me."

Judith took a deep breath "Harriet, my plans will have to be changed somewhat. An old friend, someone I knew in New York, is back again and wants to see me on Saturday I'll take a train from there and meet you and the others in Quebec."

"Oh, but Judith, you can't! You simply can't!"

"I'm terribly sorry, but I must. Please try to understand."

"Oh!" The line was silent for a few moments. Then Harriet said quietly. "I see. You want to be in New York after Saturday, too . . . This breaks up everything for us, you know."

"It shouldn't. I'm not that important. And I'll be in Quebec"

"Will you? But there's nothing I can do about it, Judith. It really won't break up everything for me. I was wrong when I said that. It won't break up everything for Katherine and Ralph either except we'll miss you But Steve—"

"I know," she answered quickly. She didn't want to talk about him. "I wouldn't blame all of you if you got angry with me and stayed angry"

"You wouldn't blame Steve if he didn't go at all?"

"No, I wouldn't blame him"

"And you wouldn't blame him if he stayed angry with you for the rest of his life It seems too bad when we had everything planned and everything so far has worked out so well But we'll have a good time. Don't worry about that But Steve — That's your affair And that's all I have to say"

"Thank you for taking it so well"

"It's all right, dear."

She fought tears before she called Katherine. Harriet had been wonderful. No tears, no reproaches, no bitterness. But the fact that Harriet had taken it so well increased her guilt and shame

Soon she heard Katherine's rich warm voice. "Hello, darling. Telepathy . . . I had a feeling you were going to call up The weather is ghastly, isn't it? It cools me to think of northern nights and a sea breeze against my face."

Judith had to say it again. "Katherine, I have bad news, I'm afraid. An old friend, someone I knew in New York, is back from South America He wants to see me in New York on Saturday and I'm—I'm going to miss the ship. The only thing I can do is take a train to Quebec and meet you there."

"Is he that important?"

"Yes Yes, he is."

"Then what can I say? I'm terribly disappointed but—Stephen can you manage that?"

"I haven't tried and I probably won't manage it very well when I do I can't expect to. I told Harriet and she was as decent as you are about it."

"Judith, only something that was just about the most important thing in the world to you would make you do this. But Ralph will be with me and when he's with me, everything is good. You're not married. You don't know that." She paused. Then, "Judith, all your friends think they know what is best for you, but when the time comes, you will know. No one will have to tell you. I've been counting on you for that, backing you up . . . Then you won't be going to New York with us?"

"Probably not. That would make it more awkward I'll meet the ship in Quebec"

It was done. Harriet and Katherine had been told. But Stephen . . . She must not wait until Friday evening to tell him She must tell him at once Walking around the room again, she thought, "Max speaks and I go Plans are torn to bits, but still I go Max has only to be there at 4 30 but I must hurt and disappoint the people who love me most I resent it, but I go. I despise myself, but still I go . . . Will he be different? His voice was the same, crisp one moment, tender the next. But I can't think about Max when Stephen thinks I'm sailing on Saturday. I've got to say all of that again, but not by telephone. The least I can do is to face him with it.

Judith said, "Will you ask him to call me? It's Miss Barth."

After she hung up the receiver Judith thought. "He's with Mary Anderson tonight." But the visualization of Stephen and Mary together did not linger. Nothing lingered tonight except the thought that she would see Max. see him, knowing that he was still Max and that she loved him. No matter the memory of Fay's voice speaking of the "cheap girls and the nice girls." No, matter what went before or what came after Saturday or if Saturday were the world's last day . . . She did not sleep and it did not occur to her until the following day that Stephen had not called.

She saw Ralph the next day and he looked at her inquisitively when he paused beside her drawing-board and said, "Katherine told me the sad news. Well, you can't plan for everything, can you?" But he really wasn't thinking that, she knew. He was thinking, "Don't be an utter fool Don't do this to Stephen. It doesn't much matter that you've let us down, but don't let him down It's a rotten trick to pull at the last minute."

She said. "No, you can't plan for everything."

He had not been gone more than a few minutes when Stephen called.

"You called me last night, Judith? It was too late when I got in to call you. How is everything?"

She didn't know, she thought. She didn't quite know. "Stephen, could you come tonight rather than tomorrow night? I'd ask you to dinner, but it's Bessie's day off."

"Oh, sure. at 8?"

"Yes, at 8."

All through the day she continued to think, "I won't think about telling him. I have a little more time before I have to think about it."

Her parents were dining out. Her mother had left her dinner in the warming oven. Judith only pretended to eat before taking a shower and putting on a cool, green, summer frock. There was still time.

But there was so little time when she was sitting in the white wicker chair on the porch and she saw Stephen's new car, a beige coupe, turn the corner.

She felt weak, seeing him get out of the car and walk up the path, a tall, well-built young man in immaculate white linen. She thought then, "I've known him a long time and I've seen him come up the path in every season of the year and in every kind of weather. I know him so well—his frown when he's displeased, the way he clears his throat when he isn't quite sure of himself . . . But he isn't the shy inferior boy any more. He's making good. He's going up to achieve his 'best'."

What do I do?

—to protect my car against growing danger of theft?

Recently a man had his car stolen from his own driveway in broad daylight. Moral: don't overlook the simplest precautions. Even at home don't leave your car standing on the street. Keep it in the garage—and lock both garage and car. Never leave ignition keys in the car . . . never leave the motor running even just to dash into a store for a few seconds. Many cars have been stolen that way—and we hope yours won't be!

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MARCH 16, 1942.

Now's the time to make your income tax report late.

It required fighting to make this a nation of free men—it will take more fighting to keep it so.

To the close-fisted man who asks if defense bonds are a "good investment"—the answer is "Yes," and in more ways than he seems to be thinking of.

Deny Compensation To Voluntary Idlers

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION, as it is operative in Ohio, is quite generally understood to apply in instances of regular workers being temporarily deprived of jobs, through no fault of their own but because of temporary reduction in the number of employes needed.

It has also been an impression that payment of unemployment benefits extended only through a period of effort needed to find other employment, rather than giving as much as eighteen weeks of compensated idleness.

It appears, however, even at this time when there is urgent requirement for workers, that some persons who are temporarily unemployed because of change-over of industries to war production, have refused other similar employment and are asking unemployment compensation because of having been laid off of their regular jobs.

Unemployment compensation, within the bounds of its intent, provides an excellent means of bridging over a brief period of unavoidable idleness—long enough to canvass the field of other employment possibilities.

But here, according to representatives of the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, are cases in which some applicants for compensation refuse to accept other jobs for which they are fitted and which are offered to them.

As the matter now stands, pending appeal, unemployment compensation is being denied to persons who refuse to accept another similar job offered to them "at a rate of pay equivalent to the prevailing wage for that type of work in the community."

At a time when every ounce of productive energy is needed to further the national war effort it seems strange that any person able to work should prefer compensated idleness to better-paid work.

More Conscious of Tire Hazards

AS MORE people are thinking about making their tires last as long as possible they are becoming conscious of rough spots on streets, chuckholes in paving, glass fragments along the curb, and other tire hazards to which little attention was paid when damaged tires could be replaced with new ones.

The winter season always results in damage to streets and roads, with repairs deferred until spring and summer, but motorists have been calling attention to an unusually large number of "bad spots" within the past couple of weeks and expressing hope that repairs will be hurried along, so as to avoid unnecessary wear and tear on tires.

Persons responsible for broken bottles frequently seen on streets seldom go to the trouble of clearing up the breakage and it is hoped that more people in business and residential sections will adopt the habit of removing glass fragments from the vicinity of their homes and places of business as quickly as possible. Some motorists, thoughtful of others, remove broken glass from the street, or along curbs, whenever they see it. This may become a more common practice when it is more generally understood that after tires now being used are worn out, or ruined, there'll be no chance of getting any more for a long time.

Fortunate In His Choice of Field

HOW fortunate for German-born George Sylvester Viereck that his field of endeavor chanced to lie in tender-hearted United States of America instead of practically anywhere else in the world!

It is to this fortunate quirk of fate that Viereck continues to be privileged to live—instead of being dead long before now.

As it is, he will be kept comfortably in prison for from two to six years, with a fine of $1,500 added to the prison sentence.

The charge was, quite mildly, that Viereck, as a registered German agent, failed to report all of his propaganda activities.

Imagine what would have been the fate of an American who attempted to indulge in the Viereck type of intrigue in Germany, Italy or Japan!

While Viereck was being sentenced in Washington seven members of a "spy ring" were being given prison sentences in New York for espionage conspiracy committed before United States entry into the war. It is explained that such offenses, if committed in wartime, subject guilty persons to the death penalty.

Remember About Horses?

HORSES may be coming back. An auctioneer who has been handling a lot of them says there's no doubt of it. He develops an interesting line of sales talk.

"You can get cheated with an auto quicker than a horse," he tells customers. "After all, you can tell a good draft horse by looking at him." Which may or may not be true.

"Look for a good clean eye," he explains. "Watch how he handles his ears." And when the puzzled young farmer insists that all horses' eyes look the same to him, and horses' ears mean nothing in his life, the auctioneer admits that the best way to tell good horses is just to "take 'em home and work 'em."

But there seems to be a catch in that. For while the novice is trying 'em out, and learning to harness and drive 'em, the auctioneer has vanished from the scene. So the buyer may find himself caught with a case of heaves, springhalt, or some other equine ailment.

Just the same, insists the horse dealer, they're bound to come back strong, because it costs too much to run tractors, mechanics are scarce, gasoline is going up, and the only answer to it is the farmer's ancient friend.

The enthusiastic bride who tried to make a Victory cake without using eggs, sugar or butter, was quite naturally chagrined when hubby mistook it for a rubber substitute.

"I can get along without a typewriter if I have to," remarked a middle-aged business man, "I went to school when they taught legible handwriting."

Comment: "The fall of Java, once so far away, is plainly heard in our midst"—but, more than likely, it was static.

BIG MAN, LITTLE HAMMER

Secret Activity In War Effort

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Things are being done in this war effort of the United States which will please the people when they know about them. This sounds like whistling in the dark at the moment, but, with the Republican situation in New York fresh before him, the writer is thinking in terms of politics.

We are getting all the bad news NOW. The tragedies in the southwest Pacific. The probability that this will lead to long, uphill fight, extending over years. The inability to protect our coastwise tankers and merchant ships, etc.

We are going to get some good news later — about things which have been done, and are being prepared. For reasons concerned with war strategy no hint of these things can be given. It is the personal view of a few of us that these things OUGHT to be told, but we are not the judges of that. This is war and we are taking our orders.

* * *

BUT some extraordinary things are going on — things which would answer a lot of the criticism which is being whispered around—things of a character to arouse public enthusiasm when they are revealed, as they will be later on.

The importance of this lies in the contrast between our system of government and the British. Winston Churchill is in danger of being ousted as this is written. He may weather the storm. He is a magnificent orator. But it's likely to be touch and go. It's very hard for even a good orator to avoid the consequences of what his critics think was very bad military judgment.

But President Roosevelt is in no such danger. The criticism in this country could reach tremendous proportions without jarring him very much. Congress could act up, but it could not deny him money for military purposes, and it could not take over the direction either of the army and navy or international relations.

So it is not POLITICALLY essential for F.D.R. to force out the good news. If any military reason justifies it, the president can permit the suppression of not only the things being done, to which allusion has already been made, but of other things which might be of even greater importance.

* * *

THE good news alluded to has come to the writer accidentally. It leads to the conviction that there must be many other things which have received no publicity.

They prove only one thing—that the administration is NOT trying to put its best foot forward at the moment—that it is far more candid on the bad news than the good.

Getting back to politics this seems to prove something else—that if the war is still raging in 1944, the re-election of Franklin D. Roosevelt then seems inevitable.

Things will happen in the meantime, to be sure. But it is far more likely that possible opponents of the president—assuming his candidacy two years hence—will have stuck their necks out too far rather than that the president will be submerged by a tide of opposition. Opposition in time of war has to be criticism of the war effort. Everything else is too picayune.

Republicans may gain seats this fall. That is another story.

Health and Diet

Walk for Health and Pleasure.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I WALKED to my office today," observed my spry old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs. "Thought I would try it out before the rubber restrictions snapped down on me. I arrived tired but triumphant. Nice tired, you know — healthy tired. And nice triumphant too. I am independent of the war in the East Indies. I am standing on my own feet. I am a free man.

"You remember the cartoonists of the early days of the automobile made imaginative prophecies as to the atrophy of the human legs and feet. They were almost right. Functionally our legs have become practically vestigial structures.

"I have really only ridden in automobiles about twenty years, but it is comic how dependent I am on them. During the twenty most active years of my professional life I walked or rode the street cars. And I had a very good time on the street cars.

"I used to slip a book in my bag. For reading there is nothing like a long street car ride. Do you remember that list of books Macaulay read on his journey out to India? I decided to duplicate that one year and I nearly did it. That uncanny appearance of a classical education that has been so much admired in my conversation might really be called 'Twenty Years on the Street Cars.'

Recommends Walking.

"I recommend everyone to take up walking again. I have never been a great advocate of strenuous exercise, but walking does not fall in that category. It is pleasantly stimulating—just right. It conduces to conversation—even if you talk to yourself. It promotes cheerfulness. It prevents you from writing letters about the mistakes the government is making; you get them out of your system in the walk. A good substantial walk lowers blood pressure and burns up some toxins and makes you feel better all around.

"Our civilization has certainly made it hard on the industrial walker though. In my student days I used to walk to medical school every morning. But the cities were smaller in those pedestrian, street car, horse and buggy days. The houses were narrow, closer together and the yards were smaller and more neighborly and they huddled around the downtown district. Nowadays we are all spread out into suburban farms with a dozen downtown districts scattered here and there. The automobile has a lot to answer for in dislocating family life.

More Neighborliness.

"Maybe this rubber shortage will bring us together again. It may not only restore those vestigial human structures, the human legs and feet, to their quondam place of power and grandeur, but make for neighborliness and friendship and get-together meetings on the front porches—which will be good hygiene for you in all directions. All humans you know, like all Gaul, are divided into three parts—body, mind and soul—and you can't affect one without affecting the other."

Hints On Etiquette.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Political Survey Reveals Voters Mystified By Roosevelt Policies

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Several smart Democratic leaders, whose business it is to know the political pulse of the country, have returned to Washington from quiet look-see trips with a very gloomy report on the party's prospects in the coming crucial congressional elections.

Naturally they are not broadcasting this, but privately they are bluntly warning White House masterminds that unless they get busy, the president stands a good chance of waking up the morning after election next November to find himself in the same unhappy predicament of Woodrow Wilson in 1918—with the Republicans in control of congress.

In fact, one of the surveyors expressed the opinion that if the election were held this spring the GOP would be certain to win the house.

A number of factors were reported as responsible for the widespread undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the administration.

One was the appointment of Mrs. Roosevelt's dancer-protege to a $4,600 civil defense job. This is said to have cut very deep. Another was the sensational disclosures of enormous profits on war contracts. A third, Jesse Jones' failure to take adequate measures to prevent a rubber shortage. Still another the apparent bungling of the Southwest Pacific battle.

But the chief causes were laid directly on the president's own doorstep: (1) His failure to compel a complete halt of labor stoppages in war production, promised by both the AFL and CIO and not fulfilled; (2) His stubborn refusal to replace the "Four Old Men" and Secretary Perkins in his cabinet with young, able and vigorous executives.

The inquiring Democratic leaders reported that everywhere they found people angry and mystified over the president's reluctance to take a firm stand on labor stoppages and to clean out the deadwood in his cabinet.

* * *

Isolated.

THE MYSTERY is just as great to inner administrationites, because privately he has evinced much concern over the continuance of labor disturbances and a definitely critical attitude toward some of his cabinet.

The president's failure to act on these, and many other domestic problems crying for attention, is attributed by some administrationites to his deep absorption in the purely military phases of the war.

As perhaps no other president in the history of the country, Roosevelt is directly and personally bossing the strategy and operations of the army and navy. He takes very literally the language in the Constitution that the president is the commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

The result of this absorption in military matters has been largely to isolate the president from civilian contacts and a sound grasp of the real temper of the country.

Once he used to pride himself on his keen knowledge of public sentiment. He traveled about the country frequently and widely, saw every week a wide variety of persons from different sections, and made it a point to keep in close contact with members of congress.

Now they are never invited to the White House for a chat and a non-military or non-war visitor is a rare exception. And it has been more than a year since the president has gone anywhere except to Hyde Park or Warm Springs.

Further, the administrative assistants that he has around him are utterly useless in keeping him informed of what's going on. They have neither the caliber nor capacity to do that.

Acutely aware of this situation, Democratic leaders feel very strongly that the president should get out in to the country. They believe it would do him a lot of good and be a real lift to the people.

Presidential traveling in time of war undoubtedly presents security problems, but it is believed these can be overcome. It is contended that it would not be difficult for the president to visit some military camps for a personal contact with the men and indirectly through them with their home folks. The president has not visited a military establishment since 1940.

Democratic chiefs think it is time that he did so as soon as the weather permits.

Mellett's Bughouse.

THE WAYS of bureaucrats are wondrous to behold.

The Office of Price Administration is one of the key war agencies. Located in temporary buildings directly opposite the War Production board, OPA needs additional space to handle the steadily growing problems of the rationing administration.

So what do the bureaucrats purpose? To move OPA to a remote place on the outskirts of Washington.

This despite the fact that OPA's ready accessibility is of the utmost importance to the smooth functioning of the war machinery. Also despite the fact that a block of park area in the heart of the Capital—on historic Pennsylvania avenue between 14th and 15th streets — has been grabbed by Lowell Mellett, White House administrative assistant, to build his clipping bureau agency, the Office of Government Reports, an office building plus an amazing so-called "Information Center."

This creation Mellett proposes to staff with charming young girls attired in flossy uniforms to dish out directions to business men and others seeking their way around in the war bureaus.

An interesting feature of this brainchild, which has been tabbed "Mellett's Bughouse," is that it is being erected despite explicit congressional disapproval. Not so long ago Mellett evinced greater concern about congressional wishes.

During the bitter pre-war battle over isolationism, he repeatedly rebuffed the efforts of anti-isolationists to secure his help on the ground that congress would not permit him to engage in controversial activities. "Congress won't allow me," was his stereotyped reply.

But now, bent on putting over his own pet scheme, Mellett has no hesitancy in disregarding congress and grabbing a building site that would serve the war effort infinitely more if used to house OPA.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The fact that congress refused to pay Walt Disney $80,000 for the treasury department short, "Donald Duck Pays His Income Tax," is a bigger snicker than any in the amusing picture.

If some are feeling sorry for Walt, they can save their sympathies. He will get paid all right, all right—even if it has to come out of the president's private war chest, though it probably won't have to. The treasury has other funds available that probably would apply.

Proof that Disney isn't worrying is that he already is at work on another treasury department short—this time, I believe, with Donald going all out for the purchase of war savings stamps and bonds.

* * *

THE snicker in the whole business is that congress has for years been appropriating funds which made it possible for Uncle Sam to become the biggest producer of short subjects in the world. The production is so scattered through the scores of government departments and agencies that it would be impossible to even estimate the number of pictures Uncle Sam has produced, but there is hardly an unusual or interesting activity of the government that hasn't been put on film.

These generally are referred to as "documentary films," but not all of them would qualify under the strictest definition of that term. Many of them are as simply informative and propagandist as the Donald Duck opus.

The government "documentaries" really came to public attention some years ago when Pare Lorentz, the one-time movie critic, produced several pictures, including "The Plow That Broke the Plains" and "The River."

Since then, the stream has been a steady one. The point is that if congress is going to crack down on this form of letting the public see what is going on behind the scenes of government, and the war effort, it had better move fast.

* * *

THAT little stream of "documentaries" is bursting out of its banks. We already have such films as "Women In War Work," with Katharine Hepburn reading the script by Mrs. Roosevelt; "Bomber," the story of construction of a war plane, with comments by Carl Sandburg; and Orson Welles, the original radio man from Mars, telling the story of "Tanks."

Walt Disney's efforts with Donald Duck are just a small part of the Washington film business. Directors Frank Capra, William Wyler and John Ford are all spending a lot of time here making pictures for the army and navy and marine corps. Garsin Kanin is doing some work for OEM, and Producer Kenneth MacGowan is directing the production of films here for consumption in South and Central America as part of our Inter-American affairs campaign.

A Farmer's Diary

Give Us Buttermilk

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

BENEATH the big cherry trees along the stone flagging outside the springhouse at Great Uncle Malachi's, the old barrel churn used to stand all summer long. Twice a week, as regularly as the day came around, the old man churned. As a little lad, I used to enjoy the sight and smell of the yellow clotted cream being poured from a brown three-gallon crock into the wide mouth of the tubby churn.

Then, on a straight old chair with a seat of woven twine, Uncle Malachi would sit and turn the churn end over end, end over end—suspended as it was on a frame by a rod through the center. His broad hat he would put on the fork of the cherry tree, and the sun would shine on his bald pate with its rim of white hair.

Within the wooden barrel, the cream made a sloshing sound—a tumbling, wishywashy rhythm that, toward the last, had the dull thud of butter in it. We learned to know, by that sound, just when the job was finished. Then he would unclamp the top and send me to bring from the springhouse the big wooden bowl and the butter ladle. He would pile the butter in golden ladlefuls into the bowl and take it inside. When he came back, he would have two heavy ironstone mugs and a shaker of salt. Together he and I would sit, while flecks of sunshine came through the cherry tree, and quaff fresh buttermilk until we were satisfied. (It was sustenance to me then — it is poetry to me now.)

Somehow that old wooden churn — or was it the rightly ripened cream and the springhouse flavor—gave buttermilk a potency and zest that could never be forgotten. Flecks of butter were always left in it—just enough to show. When the butter in the wooden bowl was washed and salted it was molded into prints with a wooden mold that made the impression of an ear of corn atop each pound, in low relief. These rolls, cold and firm from the springhouse, were wrapped in a clean white towel on market day and carried to customers in the nearest town. The buttermilk that was left was used in cookery. Great Aunt Rhoda's recipes were full of uses for buttermilk. Among the good things made with it were gingerbread, cookies, doughnuts, pancakes and corn bread.

* * *

IF YOU happen to drive along back country roads this spring and see a couple parked enjoying the view—he baldish, she grayish, and a bottle between them—don't spread suspicious rumors. That will be my wife and I—and our bottle of buttermilk!

RITES TUESDAY

Mrs. Fast, 66, Stricken at Home In Ashland County.

ASHLAND—Mrs. Alta Florence Crawford Fast, 66, wife of Orlo Fast, died Saturday at her home in Troy township following a stroke. Born in Ashland county, Nov. 14, 1875, Mrs. Fast was a former school teacher in Savannah Lake and Ruggles schools. She was married Oct. 26, 1898.

Mrs. Fast was a member of the Nova Methodist church and had served as a member of the Troy township school board. For a number of years she was president of this board.

Survivors are her husband, a daughter, Lois C., at home; a son, Harold C., of Ashland; three grandchildren; three brothers, G. C. Crawford of Orange township, C. R. Crawford and Forest M. Crawford of Middletown, and two sisters, Mrs. Mabel VanVrankin of Nova and Mrs. Helen Dodds of Middletown.

War Tempo Will Be Reflected In '42 Shoe Styles

ST. LOUIS—(INS)—The styles and colors for women's 1942 footwear will manifest the war tempo of the day, St. Louis shoe manufacturers agreed as they prepared for the new season.

Colors will be bright, vivid and confidence inspiring. Reds, greens and pastel creams will top the list.

Styles will also reflect the change in times. High-heeled shoes will be higher than ever before, it was said, while low-heeled models, with an eye towards the demands of women's voluntary service organibations, will reach new depths in day-long comfort.

One of the leading 1942 models, according to St. Louis shoe men, will be the "casual" shoe, which will be shown chiefly in low heels. The "casual," perhaps because of the defense demands now being placed on women, is predicted to be the "all-out" favorite during the year.

The women's "spectator" shoe is also due for its full share of glory, it was predicted. This model will come in a wide range of colors. Some will be pumps, some will be ties, and some will be straps. The spectator will come in both high and low heels.

Back From Coast In 51½ Hours

Traveling in a 1941 model sport coupe, the pair left the California city at 11:30 p. m. last Tuesday and arrived in Mansfield at 2 a. m. Leedy said he had to hurry back "to get ready to go to the army." They saw Mae West and Marlene Dietrich in Hollywood and acquired a tan on the beach near Los Angeles. STUDENT MUSIC CLUB ENTERTAINED SUNDAY

Walter Simon, President, Is Host At His Home; Enjoyable Program Presented; Joint Meeting Planned.

STUDENT Music club members met Sunday afternoon at the home of their president, Walter Simon, 144 Blymyer avenue. Gladys Kerr assisted. A musical program was enjoyed. "My Hero," from "The Chocolate Soldier," was rendered by a vocal trio comprised of Miss Kerr, Billie McQuillen and Margaret Crowl.

Accompanied at the piano by Marjorie Homerick, Ruth Hockett played as flute solos, "Serenade," by Haydn, and two Irish jigs. Violin solos by Mildred Hout were "Salute d'Amour," by Elgar, and "Midnight Bells" by Kreisler. Her accompaniment was played by Walter Simon who also presented three piano solos: two preludes by Scriabin and "Gavotte" by D'Albert.

"Program Notes" on the composers and pieces featured Sunday afternoon were given by James Thomas. St. Patrick's day decorations were used on the table when luncheon was served buffet style. There will be a sealed program for the next meeting which will be held jointly by the Mansfield and Ashland Student Music clubs on April 19.

The local group has been invited to attend the meeting of the Crescendo club which will be held Thursday, March 19, at the home of Barbara Shivley, 741 West Fourth street. An analysis of the opera "Aida" will be given.

Cake That Will "Steal the Show" At Your Party

Prosaic facts about St. Patrick may be lost in antiquity, but shure an' there's wan thing we may be sure of . . . He must have been a mighty fine person to know, because so many of the accessories we associate with his holiday are amusing and gay.

Pigs, clay pipes, potatoes, blarney stone, shamrocks, and pretty colleens all offer innumerable opportunities to make the St. Patrick's Day party original and inviting.

Make pigs of potatoes or hide simple favors in a giant blarney stone. Buy a supply of clay pipes for motif if your guests are adults, for bubble blowing if they are children.

Purely as a means of inspiration to show you what ideas you may work out simply and easily, we start you on your planning with a tempting, decorative cake. We've named it St. Pat's Hat and it most assuredly will "steal the show."

St. Pat's Hat.

½ package fast granular yeast
2 tablespoons lukewarm water
¼ teaspoon sugar
½ cup butter
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups sifted cake flour
½ cup milk
¾ teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons warm water

Caramel Sirup.

½ cup sugar
¼ cup boiling water

Caramel Sirup—Heat sugar in smooth, dry skillet until thoroughly melted and dark brown in color. Add boiling water. Cook until a smooth sirup is formed.

Put the granular yeast into a cup, add the 2 tablespoons lukewarm water and the ¼ teaspoon sugar, stir and let stand to soften. Cream the butter, the salt and remaining sugar together thoroughly. Add the beaten eggs and vanilla. Stir in portions of the flour and milk alternately, then add the cooled caramel sirup and the softened yeast. Mix until very smooth. Cover tightly and let stand over night in a cool place (about 60°F.) In the morning dissolve the baking soda in the remaining 2 tablespoons warm water, and stir this into the batter, mixing well. Have ready an 8-inch layer cake tin and one 6 x 10 inch shallow oblong pan, greased and lined with wax paper. Put half the batter in each pan and place them, at once, in a moderately hot oven, 350°F. Bake about 20 to 25 minutes.

After the cakes have cooled thoroughly, cut 2 or 3 circular pieces, 3½ or 4 inches in diameter, out of the oblong cake, using a No. 2 or No. 2½ can as a guide in cutting.

Frost the large circular cake with 7-Minute Boiled Frosting, tinted a delicate green. Pile the small circular pieces in the center of the frosted layer, spreading a little frosting between the layers. Finally, frost the top and sides of the central layers, and when dry put a green ribbon at the base, or frost with a band of darker green frosting.

Large Audience Enjoys Recital Sunday Afternoon

A large audience enjoyed the organ recital presented by Miss Mabel Zehner and the piano and organ selections played by Mrs. George W. Hall and Miss Zehner in the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon. Solos offered by the organist were compositions of Purcell, Bach, Rameau, Edmundson and Gaul.

Piano and organ duets by the two artists were Schumann's "Concerto In A Minor" (first movement), and "Symphonic Piece" by Clokey. Miss Zehner will present her final organ recital of the season in the same church on Sunday, April 26, at 4 p. m. She will be assisted by Lillian B. Stambaugh, soprano, of Youngstown.

Some Girls Never Get Second Date

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You may count on that old maxim: A pretty face is the best introduction. An unlimited number of girls never seem able to manage more than a single date from one man. Volumes have been written on the subject. Charm schools have been set up. Lessens in personality have been given.

Still these solitaires, who dress well, have good backgrounds and are not morons, sit in desolation and see homely girls going out and having a good time.

The stay-at-home girl consoles herself by saying the reason for her unpopularity is that she refuses to pet. But that doesn't solve the riddle because the easy petters, while they are likely to enjoy a good deal of brief attention, don't hold up well.

Very young lads feel important when they bear the brand of lipstick after a fairly large evening. But the connoisseur is more selective. The girl who is freely kissed gets to be like the old books in a circulating library, which are eventually junked.

The other day I got a letter from a girl who never manages a date. She told me all the usual things; that she had a good position and that as far as she could see, the only cause of her unpopularity was that she wore glasses. She had trouble making friends, and her acquaintances never invited her to their homes. She felt left out of everything.

She went on to say that she could probably get a "pick-up" but, "I'm not of that type. I come from a good family and we have a beautiful home, but it just makes me discouraged to sit at home and see all the rest of the girls go out with their boy friends. I've heard people say that such a girl has an attractive personality. I don't think the most lonesome soldier would look at me. Are my troubles the result of wearing glasses?"

Distinctly, the trouble is not because this girl wears glasses. Smart-looking glasses add piquancy to a good many girls.

If this girl had sent her address, it's possible I could have given her a few suggestions. Her whole letter was revealing, but there was no identification beyond the city in which she lives.

I have a very large collection of letters from dateless girls, or the one-date girl who never gets a return engagement. Let's swap diary Jane's troubles with those of Ann Eliza, and see if we can't get some working basis as to why girls are unpopular. Here's a chance for all girls, popular and unpopular, to write in. We'll see what comes of it.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"They'll be miracle men if they do catch our tracks," the driver of our armored car said. "You did a good job of sweeping back there. I lamped you in the mirror.

"Yes, I guess the job's okay," Gus admitted with manifest pride, "and the rest is up to you, if you know these roads like you said."

"I'd like to see one I don't," the man said. "Kent is where she wants to start looking, you said? Well, Kent is where we're going."

"Okay," Gus answered. "How long will it take to get there?"

Near Journey's End.

"Depends on what luck we have," the driver told him. "If I get any kind of an even break, we'll be there inside of an hour and a half. I could do it in an hour—"

"But you won't," Gus interrupted with decision. "Remember what the Chief said about being careful on this trip."

"Who's forgetting it?" the driver retorted tartly. "I told you an hour and a half, didn't I?"

"Okay, okay," Gus said placatingly. "Keep your shirt on. Nobody's calling you."

The driver gave a sort of appeased grunt, and for a long stretch of miles none of the three men spoke.

I knew that before we reached Kent I would have to talk things over with Gus and map out a plan for getting from the village to the home of Professor Diswell.

The driver had said it would take him an hour and a half. I waited half that time, then sat up, smoothed my dress, did things to my coiffure with a comb from my bag, and folded the sheets and blanket so that they could be put back into the zipper bag without trouble. The pillow I tucked back of my head, and when I settled comfortably I raised my voice enough for Gus to hear me.

"Gus!" I called. "Will you please come back here?"

The driver immediately crowded nearer to the left door of the car, the second man moved closer to him, and Gus fumbled with some mechanism and the right side of the front seat promptly swung back. After replacing it Gus came back to me. He frowned as he saw the folded sheets and blanket.

"You oughtn't to have done that, Missis Graham," he said. "Why didn't you call me?"

"Because I didn't need you," I said, smiling at him. "And I wish you'd leave them right there. I may need them again, going back."

Gus voiced his unchangeable formula.

"Okay," he said. "Did you have a good sleep?"

"Perfect!" I prevaricated glibly. "And now I want you to look at this map, and then show it to the driver."

I spread the map out in front of us and pointed to the dot labeled "Kent."

"Here's the intersection of Routes 7 and 341," I said. "I want Route 341, but I don't want to go through Kent to get it, because if that other armored car should be headed for the same place we are, it undoubtedly will come to this corner.

"Please ask the driver if there is another road which will get us to 341 without going through Kent?"

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 17.

An important day on which much of major interest both public and private demands decisive action and initiative. It may be a time for attacking new propositions, in which the public welfare seems to be at issue, with energy, positive and direct approach, in order to circumvent some sort of opposition or crafty undermining by large corporations, fraternities, or perhaps political bodies. This energetic and aggressive manipulation may be supported by a social or friendly approach in which personal prestige and popularity figure. There may be sudden and surprising developments incident to changes in plans.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of important objectives in which success depends upon strenuous, forceful and direct action in which practical methods and common sense are sustained by the clever use of personal popularity and prestige, social or friendly relations. The public is benefited despite shrewd or subtle opposition from large organizations or political bodies aiming at defeat. Things may take a surprising turn, calling for some changes of tactics or yielding to gain a point. But be alert to deception.

A child born on this day should have much energy, talent, courage and stamina as well as much personal grace, ambition and prestige. It may have fine creative ability and resourcefulness.

Sit Pretty And Be a Picture

By MME QUI VIVE

Some teen age girls, affecting an arty, careless, casual manner go in for sprawling. They flop into a chair, get themselves into ungainly lumps, drive their mothers frantic. Mothers cling to the old-fashioned idea that girls should be ladylike. They believe that growing girls should be graceful and attractive, that the awkward age is just a notion; there is no need of being awkward at any age. All the little daughter has to do is to use her backbone for the purpose for which it was intended, keep her feet together, find an easy pose for her hands.

Nobody needs a course in physical culture to understand posture or to maintain it. Two simple rules make for graceful movement and harmonious lines; keep the backbone stretched its fullest length at all times—walking, sitting or standing—and tuck in your tummy. With the abdominal tissues flat, the chest will lift naturally, the shoulders will have ease, there will be a sense of aliveness and vibrancy.

Any girl who will keep these simple facts in mind will never assume an ungainly attiture. There will be no complaining from her about a flat chest or a horrid little roll abaft the waistline, which is the result of poor posture.

When sitting, occupy all of the chair. Don't perch on the edge of the chair or rest on one thigh bone. Doctors claim that there are certain deformities which might well be called chair diseases. A slouchy position has a deplorable effect upon the spinal column, often causes backache. This position does away with the neat inward curve at the rear waistline which automatically lifts the chest cavity, sends the hips backward, where they belong, and creates a sense of energy and well being that is the reward of body balance.

The typist and the seamstress —any worker who must sit for hours — should provide herself with a chair that gives support at that inward curve. Such chairs can be purchased. A substitute support is a pad attached to the chair back.

Improper sitting positions interfere with full, free breathing, which entails poor circulation and may weaken the lungs. The muscles of the back go slack and that's bad; the attractive figure is dependent upon strong muscles.

Poor posture at any time is productive of pelvic displacements. The inner organs descend into the lower abdomen, the intestinal tract is likely to suffer from disturbances.

Aside from health hazards, there is the important matter of appearance. The girl or woman who permits herself to assume slouchy attitudes never appears well dressed. She looks as if she were wearing somebody else's clothes.

Train Child To Fix His Attention

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

In almost any group of parents during an open forum the question comes, "How may I teach my boy of 12 to concentrate?" or, "My girl of 10 is such a dreamer. What may I do to teach her to pay strict attention to her lessons?"

The question gives me a feeling almost of despair because I feel so nearly helpless in attempting an answer. The problem is so general and so vague. No one can answer it with finality. In the first place, concentration, or the lack of it, is tied up with a whole lifetime of habits. It is not a specific something we can get at, such as swearing or playing with matches or failing to say "thank you." It consists of countless attitudes and habits. We don't teach concentration as we teach spelling or memorizing.

Teaching Concentration.

Your child or mine grows in ability to concentrate as he succeeds in paying strict attention to one specific activity at hand, then another, then another, and so on. Each victory will help him win another. Of course, the child who does not hear or see well might easily grow inattentive.

In teaching a child to concentrate the task is about as follows: Turn him to things to learn or do that he can do well, but which will challenge his efforts. Do everything possible to control the situation so that he will succeed and will get satisfaction from success. If he can be led to spell accurately two words of his spelling lesson he might find no difficulty in working vigorously at the other four or eight. If he finds he can read the book he borrowed from the library and get meaning from it with satisfaction, he has a motive to go on reading. But if it proves too hard for him he is likely to dream as he reads and soon to close the book and abandon it entirely.

What we parents and teachers are most likely to do is to scold the dreamy, inattentive child or to exhort him on the virtues of concentration. We would help him more by challenging him to play a game of checkers. If he played well he would at least cultivate concentration habits at the game.

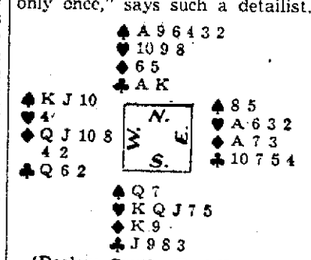
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

JUST HOW GOOD A FIT

Meticulous care in showing how well his hand fits his partner's major suit is urged by many a fine player. "My immediate raise of your suit, after hearing it bid only once," says such a detailist.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥

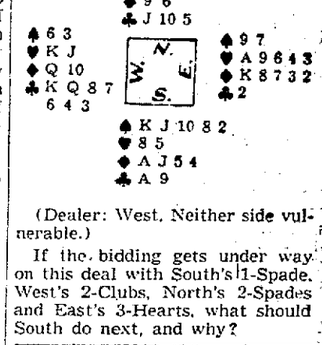
That was neatly turned bidding. South's 2-No trumps on his second turn did several things which could not be done by his calling 3-Hearts. First, it showed more strength than 3-Hearts, which might be a sign-off effort with quite a weak hand, whereas South had quite a good one. Second, it notified his partner that he had some sort of stopper in both clubs and diamonds, the unbid suits. Third, it enabled North to show him exactly three hearts for support if he raised. Fourth, it enabled North, if he had less than three hearts, to bid 3-No Trumps if he was fairly strong, to drop it if he was not, or to bid spades a third time if he had six and his hand seemed hopeless at No Trumps.

When North showed his three-card support at 3-Hearts, South had just about enough to bid 4-Hearts, which he made, losing one trick each in diamonds, hearts and spades.

If North, for lack of four hearts, had gone to 3-No Trumps when South failed to rebid the suit, the contract could have been set easily. The natural diamond lead to the A, then a knockout of the diamond K, would have fixed South so that, as soon as he drove out the heart A, the defenders would have peeled off enough diamonds to set him two tricks.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the bidding gets under way on this deal with South's 1-Spade, West's 2-Clubs, North's 2-Spades and East's 3-Hearts, what should South do next, and why?

Using Fruits Without Sugar

By BETSY NEWMAN

WE MAY have to re-educate our tastes in eating for the duration. If you are one of those who bury your grapefruit, and other fruits, under sugar, train yourself to eat them without any.

Today's Menu

Chili Con Carne
Mashed Potatoes
Green Salad Popovers
Stewed Prunes
Coffee or Substitute

Chili Con Carne

1 lb. ground beef
2 tbsps. meat fat
2 cups stewed tomatoes
1 to 2 tsps. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 can kidney beans or 2 cups dried kidney beans, cooked
1 tsp. chili powder
1 tbsp. flour

Brown chopped beef in fat, stirring while browning, to brown on all sides; add tomatoes and beans, cover and cook over low heat for 20 minutes. Mix flour and chili powder to a smooth paste with a little cold water, and add to meat mixture, stirring in well. Add salt and pepper, cover and cook over low heat for 40 minutes. Or it may be cooked in the oven, but cook slowly, as the long, slow cooking develops the flavor. Serve with mashed potatoes, or in bowls with crackers, if preferred.

Popovers

1 cup flour
½ tsp. salt
1 cup milk
1 egg

Sift salt and flour together, beat egg slightly and add milk, adding both to dry ingredients. Beat only enough to mix well, and pour into hot buttered gem pans or custard cups. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 30 minutes, then turn out fire or open oven door and let popovers remain in oven for a few moments.

ALLIES BOOST WAR TEMPO AS POWER GROWS

Torres strait, indicating an increasing flow of Japanese planes to this region.

In a sudden shift of tactics, the British struck out in Burma and recaptured the city of Shwegyin, 100 miles northeast of Rangoon. There was no great significance attached to this feat but it made plain the determination of the British to defend India by seizing the initiative wherever possible.

That determination was made grimly clear by British Air Marshal E C. Peirse in New Delhi, India. The air marshal cited the tremendous reinforcements of aircraft now reaching India and Burma and flatly declared.

"We are not going to just put up an umbrella and sit—we are going to carry the war into Japan."

British Report Gains In Rangoon

MANDALAY, Burma — (Delayed) — (AP) — British imperial forces, stiffening their resistance after a long retreat, were unofficially reported today to have recrossed to the east bank of the Sittang river in a counteroffensive and captured Shwegyin, 80 miles north of Rangoon

The British were forced to draw back over the Sittang river a few days ago in a retreat which opened the way to the Japanese occupation of Rangoon, the capital and chief port

Shwegyin was recaptured in a fierce house-to-house fight in which Indian troops used bayonets and kris (short curved sword) after meeting a force of about 500 Japanese, supported by traitorous Burmese outside the town and forcing them back.

Solomon Island Landings Reported

LONDON — (INS) — A Vichy radio broadcast in London today reported from Tokyo that Japanese forces have landed in the Solomon islands east of New Guinea, and have occupied points directly menacing the New Hebrides islands lying off Australia's east coast

Calls On FDR To Co-Operate With Defense Program

NEW YORK—(INS)—In one of the bitterest attacks since the war, Rep Taber (R) N. Y veteran Republican member of the house today charged that "everyone in Washington seems to be trying their best to put the defense program across except the president and a certain group that he has surrounded himself with."

Speaking before the Women's National Republican club of New York, Taber called on the president "regardless of his natural inclination to go in two opposite directions at once, to begin to co-operate with the defense program."

"How much longer must Harry Hopkins, with his proven incompetence, have the major say in our defense program? Taber asked "How much longer shall we have a division of information headed by Archibald MacLeish giving out statements which cannot be supported by fact?"

MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY

HITS SALES TAX

Treasury Renews Its Objections to That Type of Levy.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The treasury department estimated today that a general five per cent retail sales tax with no exemptions would yield $5 018 000 000 in new revenue but renewed its objections to that type of levy

they might aid people carried into the water by the giant waves

"Waves washing over the ship now began carrying men into the sea," Maddocks said "The majority of those people started swimming for the nearest point of land about 60 yards on the port beam but sea and wind carried them rapidly parallel to the shore so that they made for a point about 200 yards from the ship and more to the eastward.

'The sheerness of the cliff at this point made it practically impossible to gain a hold A heavy, thick oil covering on the surface of the water, extending about 50 feet out from the shore made progress there exceedingly difficult Most of the people in the water were caught in this tarlike covering and swallowed much of it and this, combined with the paralyzing cold of the water, the difficult landing point the strong backwash from the shore and their general condition of exhaustion accounted for so few people making the beach in this manner

"To the right of this point was the small beach where the rafts had landed previously and here some of the swimmers were able to make a landing It was reported that several persons were seen carried out to sea"

Maddocks said that heavy waves washed men overboard until there were only three left clinging to the hull at 2:30 p m They were rescued by a dory brought overland from St. Lawrence Great praise was given to the rescuers

NEW SALES TAX?

Treasury Studies Means To Increase War Revenue.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The treasury estimated today that a 10 per cent sales tax would raise as much as $9,702 000 000 in war revenue more than $2 000 000 000 over the estimated yield of the administration's proposal for stiffer income and corporation taxes

The treasury, which is opposed to a sales tax, submitted its statistics to the house ways and means committee, which now leans toward sales taxation in preference to the staggering income taxes suggested by the administration.

The yield estimated by the treasury did not include a tax on rents or personal services It did however include purchases by the federal state and local governments and by war contractors city to enforce the ordinance without making arrests.

The Standard Oil company's suit was filed shortly after 10 a. m today by Attorney Maurice F. Hanning of the Cleveland law firm of McAfee, Grossman, Hanning, and Newcomer, and Attorney J. H Gongwer of the Mansfield firm of Henkel and Gongwer.

The oil company contends in its petition that filling stations do more business between the hours of 7 and 11 p. m. than from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m

It was pointed out in the petition that the plaintiff firm "renders other varied services to the motoring public in assisting the public in the preservation of its automotive equipment and tires"

It added that "due to the great increase in the activity of defense industries and the increased interest on the part of the public in preserving its automotive equipment, the demand of the public for services during the evening hours has greatly increased in Mansfield and the state at large."

The oil company further contends that "any attempt to compel it to comply with the provisions of the ordinance infringe upon the plaintiff's property rights and would do irreparable injury to the plaintiff's business and would cost the plaintiff many thousands of dollars"

The petition also points out that the employes of the oil company would be harassed by a number of criminal suits and actions and the possibility of a loss in the accumulation of court fines and costs The ordinance provides for punishment by fines up to $100.

The plaintiff firm named the City of Mansfield, Mayor W. J. Locke, Service-Safety Director Fred B Wolff, City Solicitor Wagner and Police Chief Thomas H. Bell as defendants. The police department would be charged with enforcement of the ordinance, should it be permitted to stand after the April 13 hearing

Appearing in court today with Attorneys Gongwer and Hanning was John B. Coleman, manager of the Mansfield district for the Standard Oil company.

"The more I smoke, the more I appreciate Camels," says Miss Lewis at a late supper with friends at the St. Regis. "Their cool, rich flavor is all the more enjoyable because Camels are so mild—with less nicotine in the smoke." You, yourself, try Camels. GEN. JOHNSON: Drastic Curb on War Profits Sought

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—It is believed in these parts that the president last week held a conference on the advisability of checking inflation by establishing ceilings on all prices and wages as of some certain recent date "according to the Canadian plan."

Gen. Johnson.

Just why it should be called the Canadian plan is not clear. It has been urged here for years and Leon Henderson has actually practiced it on a few products.

The simplest way of saying it is perhaps:

"Inflation is high prices. The way to stop inflation is to stop rises in prices."

The way to stop rising prices is to stop—forbid—them.

Perhaps the main reason that we didn't try that here was that both organized labor and organized agriculture objected to any ceiling over their prices and were too strong politically to be denied.

But there were other reasons. One was that there were many other and less easily understood theoretical cures of this evil.

One was to tax away from everybody all their buying power, except enough to leave money for only necessities or to absorb at present prices, without bidding higher ones, all the estimated 65 billions of dollars worth of 1942 production of "consumers' goods."

Nobody knows if or how that would work to check inflation. It is pure theory. But it is not pure theory that it would mean taking by taxes from people perfectly fantastic sums.

At the treasury, where this theory was born, that result caused no hesitation. On the contrary it was suggested, if not proposed, to make the tax-payer find monthly in cash—not merely the terribly high taxes of 1942, but part of the much higher rates of 1943.

As another method of checking inflation, by taking away public purchasing power, there was discussed "forced savings"—the setting aside by government decree of a portion of each person's monthly earnings to be paid to him in government bonds or savings stamps and repaid "after victory."

There is no reluctance among our people to paying taxes to finance the war. We are not talking about that here.

These taxes are to "prevent inflation." They are proposed by a government which has on its books two very effective laws to create inflation — put there for that purpose.

These laws are a limitation to 40 hours of work per week without confiscatory overtime, and a law to peg farm price to whatever inflation may occur.

Rising farm prices and labor wages are two principal elements of a rising general price structure. Yet the government has been unable while proposing grievously bearing tax laws, to muster the courage to strike down these great elements of inflation.

It is grotesque. Many unfortunate people, due to the destructive effect on business and present income of the government's many measures of war restrictions, are finding it necessary to try to borrow money to pay the current installments of taxes.

It is a fashion among some in Washington to say the cost of living has not risen importantly. The housewife knows that it has murderously increased.

Between this and the fall in values are vanished billions—before new taxes even begin to work. The country is beginning to know this even if Washington doesn't.

HOUSE STUDIES PROPOSAL TO CREATE WAAC

Expected To Approve Measure Providing For Enlistment of Women In Army.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Highlighted by expected house action today on a bill to create, for the first time in history, a women's auxiliary army corps in the United States, congress reassembled for a busy legislative week.

The war department approved WAAC measure was expected to meet virtually no opposition on the house floor. Modelled after a similar British law, it provides for the enlistment of women to serve, in uniform, at $21 a month in non-combatant duties such as air raid warning work, telephone operating, typing, and other jobs.

With the army frankly anxious for the auxiliary corps so that 12,500 women can be signed up at once "for the duration" and others taken in later, the bill was given the legislative right of way. Congress, however, continued work on other matters.

On the senate floor the defense opened its case for Sen. Langer (R) N. C., whose ouster is being sought on the grounds of moral turpitude.

Sen. Reynolds (D) N. C., announced that he will seek as soon as possible to bring up the bill raising soldiers' pay from $21 to $42 a month.

Plunged in controversy over whether to enact a federal sales tax, the house ways and means committee resumed hearings on the $7,610,000,000 new tax program.

With a strong effort being made to restore to the measure $23,000,000 trimmed by the house for the Table Rock and Bull Shoals power projects in the White river basin in Arkansas and Missouri, a senate subcommittee opened hearings on the appropriation bill for the war department's civil functions.

Also pending before the senate was the agricultural supply bill, badly mangled by the house which deleted some $50,000,000 from New Deal farm agencies. Another senate subcommittee under Sen. Doxey (D) Miss., meanwhile, opened hearings on a controversial bill to ban the closed shop issue in labor disputes in war industries.

Most people would like it much better if the traditional March winds would die down to mere breezes during the rest of the month, but County Engineer Howard Sword wants the wind to blow hard two or three more days in March. He said some wind and a couple of brisk showers would do more to save the county roads from breaking up than anything the road department can do. Hard rain packs the mud and the wind helps to dry the roads, protecting them from heavy traffic. Continuing his inspection of the roads today, the engineer said he has found no damage yet that equals that of last spring.

The automobile tire shortage problem is beginning to have an awakening effect upon Mansfield residents, especially upon those living along the route of a certain motorist who drove to work this morning without tires. Traveling along on the steel rims of the wheels, the motorist set up a clatter which sounded like a steam-roller. Other motorists slowed up to watch his progress which failed to exceed more than 10 miles an hour.

It wasn't cold weather but government restriction that "froze" delivery of the new fire truck which was displayed in Mansfield recently while en route to St. Marys, O. When the truck failed to reach its destination, immediately the report was circulated that it froze up and fell apart so it had to be returned to the manufacturer. The truth is, however, that the government "froze" the delivery of trucks temporarily and the fire truck was taken to Detroit while the necessary papers could be drawn up for its release to St. Marys.

LABOR PUSHES FOR COMBINED CONTROL BILL

Senators Urge Wage Ceiling Proposal Be Accompanied By Profits Curb.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Congressional friends of labor served notice today they would fight to link a drastic limitation of war profits with any legislative wage controls that may be proposed by President Roosevelt as a result of current studies.

Senator Hill of Alabama, the Democratic whip, and Senator LaFollette (Pro.-Wis.) both long-time supporters of labor, demanded that any action taken to place a ceiling on wages be accompanied by legislation which would take away most, if not all, of the profits on war production contracts.

Hill conceded that it might be necessary to apply brakes to wage increases to prevent inflation, but added that it was just as essential that war profits be limited for the same reason.

LaFollette said that while he was prepared to accept wage controls if they were accompanied by profit curbs, he thought the placing of an arbitrary ceiling over wages might result in disruption of the industrial machinery far beyond anything yet experienced.

Chairman George (D.-Ga.) said the finance committee undoubtedly would study a proposal to impose a super war tax on all government contracts when it considers the new revenue bill.

Discussion of several other phases of the labor problem was scheduled and a senate appropriations subcommittee, headed by Senator Thomas (D.-Okla.) expected to touch upon these in hearings at which government officials and labor leaders have been invited to testify.

Thomas said he would ask the committee to depart from its usual procedure and hold public hearings on the progress of the war production program, as a result of numerous complaints he had received about strikes, the operation of the wage-hour law and the reputed failure of many war factories to keep their machines going around the clock.

At the same time, Senator Reed (R.-Kas.) asked a senate judiciary subcommittee to advance hearings on his bill to outlaw the closed shop on government contracts and Chairman Van Nuys (D.-Ind.) predicted the full committee probably would order hearings on a bill by Senator Holman (R.-Ore.) to raise the 40-hour week to 48 hours.

WANTS STATE TO BUY BONDS

Lausche Proposes Investment of $20,000,000 In U. S. Securities.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland proposed today that the state invest $20,000,000 in United States bonds to help win the war.

The Democratic mayor's suggestion was contained in a letter to Gov. John W. Bricker and again brought up the controversial question of disposition of the Ohio treasury surplus. Many municipal officers have contended that the Republican state administration built up a huge surplus while city governments lacked money for operating essentials.

Lausche, one of the leaders of the fight against increasing the state surplus, pointed out that the legislature would have to sanction conversion of state funds into government bonds.

"I feel certain that the legislators of Ohio, if called into special session by you, would patriotically respond to any plan which would simultaneously promote the war, civilian defense and sound economy," Lausche wrote to the governor.

Lausche said that a recent report of the state treasurer "shows a balance of $37,000,000 in the state's general revenue fund, of which more than $20,000,000 is unappropriated, is not being used and is not drawing interest."

Purchase of the bonds would be a great contribution to financing the war, would demonstrate Ohio's readiness to cooperate with the federal government in winning the war, and would be a fine example to the citizens of the state, who are being called upon to buy the bonds individually," he wrote. "If the bonds are a good investment for the public, they are equally good for the state.

NEW YORK'S MYSTERY RECLUSE FOUND DEAD IN METAL VAULT

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK —(INS)— Death today sealed the mystery of the Ghetto "Dracula."

In a trash-littered, bedless two room east side apartment, police found the body of Jeremiah Erranght, about 55, a railroad laborer. The six-foot recluse was discovered in a four-foot metal box which served as his bed and which police said resembled a "medieval torture chamber."

Death was due to natural causes.

For 35 years no one but Erranght had entered the apartment. In his cramped sheet-metal box he apparently had slept every night without room to stretch out. Entrance to the box was through a door on one end and which was locked from the inside.

He was seldom seen about the neighborhood except to whisper his needs to tradesmen. He was said to stop and close his eyes when women passed him.

His elongated figure garbed in a long black cape and wide black hat caused children to call him Dracula.

Two black trunks filled with yellow, illegible documents, a safety deposit key and $150 in postal certificates were found by police.

Estimates 84,000 Farmhands Needed Throughout State

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Wanted: 84,000 farmhands.

That's the estimate of H. C. Ramsower, director of agricultural extension at Ohio State university, of the additional help needed to harvest Ohio's 1942 bumper crop. The estimate was based on figures from Union county, first in the state to complete a canvass under direction of the state land use planning commission.

Union county, which the director said represented 1-60th of the state's farming territory, showed operators of 1,700 farms employing only 251 day-by-day workers, as against the 1,411 hands employed last year. Since federal officials are requesting increased production because of the war, it was estimated that 1,400 more workers than those now employed would be needed in Union county.

Ramsower also estimated that there would be need for a total of 663 year-around workers in the county, or 119 more than now employed and 51 more than employed in 1941.

Mansfield Meets Bowling Green In Regional Tourney

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Said Coach George Burkett of Tiffin Columbian to Coach Vern Hoffman of Mansfield:

"Where did you get all those old men? All of those players of yours must be pushing that 20-year age limit."

Said Coach Vern Hoffman to Coach George Burkett:

"Why these boys are just children. They'll not be seeing 20 for years and years yet."

* * *

And Hoffman goes on to prove it. Not one of the Sandusky district champion Mansfield Tygers has reached his 18th birthday, and the average age of the entire squad taken to the district joust is 16 years, nine months. Here's the score card:

* * *

Player	Years	Months
Altamonte	17	8
Dietzel	17	6
Hahn	16	4
Romano	17	6
Winbigler	17	8
Robinson	17	3
Hager	17	11
Baker	16	1
Lamoreux	15	3
McBride	16	5

Says Dick Behr, the Fremont sports scribe:

"We Wuz Robbed. One of the wire services has announced its mythical all-Ohio scholastic cage combines . . . the punks put Fremont's Snooks Jenkins not on the first team, not on the second, nor the third team. No sir. They shoved him clear back in the honorable mention column with a whole bunch of players who couldn't carry his trunks. . .

"They placed Dee Snelling of Newark, who scored but 246 points in 21 games, on the first team instead of Jenkins, who tallied 278 in 18. And then Bob Winbigler of Mansfield, who has accounted for but 294 with two tournament games included, made the third team."

* * *

Behr opined that they would see in that Friday night game whether Winbigler or Jenkins was the best forward and that if Jenkins didn't score the most points it probably would be because of Guard Romano who could also get no more than honorable mention.

Well we saw it. And Winbigler is still the best of the two Jenkins proved himself really great in mechanical ability and outscored Winbigler 14 to 12, with 12 of his points coming in the first half, but he also showed he lacks the mental and temperamental balance to be considered in the same class with the Tyger ace.

* * *

While Windy was keeping himself and the entire Mansfield team calm, and playing a cool, steady game, Jenkins blew up completely in the last half, even to the extent of committing intentional fouls.

Miami And Irish Grab Meet Laurels

INDIANAPOLIS — (AP) — Notre Dame and Miami university of Oxford O. held new track laurels today gained by winning team championships in the university and college divisions respectively, in the 10th annual Butler relays.

* * *

Bob Wright Ohio State hurdler who won the 60-yard high and low hurdles events, for the second consecutive year was awarded the trophy as the outstanding individual performer.

NELSON SCORES HIGH IN RIFLE SHOOT

T. Nelson was high gun in the Mansfield Muzzle Loader rifle club match Saturday with a 73.2 per cent, and E. Adams was second with 46.6.

Nelson had low string in offhand shooting at 30 yards, with a 2.42 inch string for three shots. G. Lantz copped first in the 50 yard rest matches with two firsts in three events. Baldwin took the other first.

New Cage Champs Certain

Drawings Made Today For Class B Tourney.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio's 16 Class B qualifiers for the state high school basketball championship today pick their opponents for Thursday's opening round, the drawings to be made at the tourney site in Wittenberg college field house at Springfield.

* * *

One thing is assured as the survivors of the huge starting field of 902 teams get together—there will be a new champion. Not one of the 16 finalists has ever copped the Class B crown, but there's plenty of talent scrapping for it this week-end.

* * *

Bremen, central district qualifier, and Lorain Clearview from the northeastern area have won 23 games without a setback. Gnadenhutten from the eastern sector has bowed only once in 27 starts, and Latham Western Rural of the southeastern district has won 28 of 31. Waynesburg has copped 25 of 28, while Fairport boasts 23 wins in 25 games.

Tipp City, southwestern district entry, is plenty tough, too, as shown by its 34-33 victory in the finals over Anna, which had won 22 in a row.

Other Class B entrants are: central district, Marion St. Mary, eastern, Yorkville; southeastern, Somerset; northwestern, Webster, Bluffton, New Washington and Ottawa Hills; southwestern, Xenia O. S. and S. O. Home and Wyoming.

Class A district play will be wound up tonight, with Toledo Woodward and Toledo Central slashing for a northwestern district position, and eight teams meeting at Kent for two northwestern sector berths. Pairings for today's games at Kent are Barberton vs. Akron South, Akron Stow vs. Akron Kenmore, Massillon vs. Cuyahoga Falls, and Elyria vs. Akron North.

* * *

Already qualified for Class A championship play are: central, Columbus South; eastern, Cambridge and Steubenville; southeastern, Greenfield McClain; southwestern, Cincinnati Roger Bacon, Dayton Roosevelt and Xenia Central; northwestern, Bowling Green, Mansfield and Celina; northeastern, Canton Lehman, Lakewood and Warren.

* *

Only Xenia O. S. and S. O. Home of the Class B contingent was able to repeat from last year, while Lakewood, last year's runner-up, and Xenia Central are the only Class A teams assured of repeating. Massillon has a chance to make it three trips in a row to the state meet, but must win two games to do it.

Five of last year's finalists, three in Class A and two in Class B, were defeated in Saturday's district championship games. Columbus South won its 19th in 20 starts by beating favored Newark 42 to 32, chasing the two-time state champs out of the running.

* * *

Middletown, southwestern powerhouse, fell before Dayton Roosevelt 22-20 in a two-overtime classic, while Mansfield pushed Ashland aside 37 to 31. In Class B, Berlin of the central district lost to Bremen 32-31, while Yorkville erased Smithfield 32-31 after losers had made two straight trips to the state meet.

* * *

The Class A teams will stage four regional tourneys of four clubs each this week end. One team from the northeastern district joins Greenfield in an invasion of Dennison to battle Cambridge and Steubenville. Columbus South goes to Dayton to meet Xenia Central, Cincinnati Roger Bacon and Dayton Roosevelt, the northeastern playoff is at Youngstown between four of that area's five survivors while Bowling Green, Mansfield, Celina and the Toledo playoff winner meet at Findlay.

Winners of the four Class A regionals clash in a one-day tourney April 28 at Kent State university for the championship.

New York Rens Win At Cleveland

CLEVELAND — (INS) — The new York Renaissance club, flashy negro professional basketball team, walked away today with a major share of the $5,000 prize money of the eight-team invitational basketball tourney held Saturday and Sunday.

* * *

The Rens walloped the Fort Wayne Zollners on Saturday night after trailing by 14 points and then crushed the East Liverpool (O.) Fleetwings Sunday afternoon 63 to 45. The New Yorkers then went on to defeat the Chicago Bruins, George Halas' entry, 62 to 51 last night before more than 6,000 spectators.

* * *

Taking the consolation prize, the American League Champion Wilmington (Del.) Blue Rocks trimmed the Fleetwings 55 to 42.

Freshman Play Arises Again

Managers' Committee Gathers For Report.

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — The question of freshmen participation in Ohio conference varsity sports headed today for another airing at a meeting of league managers here Saturday.

Conference Commissioner George Daniel of Lorain said a committee studying the advisability of permitting first-year college men to play on varsity teams would meet a day in advance of the managers' session.

* * *

Committee Chairman Walter J. Livingston, Denison university athletic director, will report committee findings at the Saturday session, to be held simultaneously with the physical education and track coaches' meetings.

* * *

Daniel supervisor of Lorain public school physical education, said the coaches and athletic directors could only make recommendations. Final action is up to the managers and faculty representatives of the 20-school conference, who meet May 15 in Oberlin. Recommendations customarily are approved.

Freshman participation was rejected at a Columbus meeting last fall but the question was reopened at a meeting in Mansfield early this year, when the study committee was appointed.

Playoffs Started In Ice League

(By United Press)

The Indianapolis Capitols and the Springfield Indians prepared today to meet in the opening playoff game tomorrow night for the American Ice Hockey league championship.

The Capitols wound up the regular season last night by winning the western division title, after taking a 10-3 decision in the final game from Pittsburgh.

* * *

Springfield copped the eastern standard—13 points ahead of the second place team—by trimming Providence, 8-7.

* * *

In the only other game Buffalo defeated Cleveland, 5-4.

In the other playoff games, New Haven meets Hershey while Washington takes on Cleveland in three-game series. The contest between Indianapolis and Springfield will be the first of five games. The winners of the second and third place series will meet later to decide who will oppose the victor of the Indianapolis-Springfield contests for the championship.

Ohioans Lead In ABC Joust

Youngstown Keglers Roll Top 2878 Score.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — With their 2878 score paced by Mike Mauser, 65-year-old veteran who captured the ABC all-events back in 1930, the Struthers Bowling Center team of Youngstown, O., today surveyed the rest of the kegling world from their perch atop the five-man standings in the 42nd annual American Bowling Congress.

* * *

Mauser cracked out a 689 series yesterday to lead his team to its top spot, but today the reign is expected to be temporary, since no score less than 2900 has won the ABC since 1910.

* * *

Two 51-year-old Chicago keglers, Axel Ehrns and Mike Rieth, an accountant and a truck driver, took over second place in the two-man standings, tacking their 614 and 647 scores together for a respectable 1261. They opened their doubles with a 492 series, second high in the tourney to date.

The only other change in the doubles standings saw Bill Larson and Howard Wright, of St. Paul, Minn., kick over 1203 for tenth, but they were promptly shoved down to 11th when Ehrns and Rieth came through.

* * *

A Milwaukee kegler, Nicholas Maghon, turned in the best performance of the day when he added games of 244-180-235 for a 659 series, good for seventh place in the singles standings.

* * *

A 641 series in the singles by Ding Bell, of St. Charles, Ill., added to his 631 in the doubles and his 551 in the team event to give him fifth place in the all-events with 1823.

The 1889 of Frank Schnaitman, of Chester Pa., still paces the all-events, the 690 of Vincent Gries, Elizabeth, N. J., leads the singles, and the duo leadership is held by William Faust, jr., and Gene Sweisler, of Indianapolis, who posted a 1289.

Harder Hurls In Old Style

Starts Comeback In Impressive Fashion.

SANFORD, Fla. — (UP) — Mel Harder advanced a big step along the comeback trail today as he looked back on a highly satisfactory performance in his first regular turn on the mound during spring season.

* * *

The veteran Cleveland hurler limited the Kansas City Blues to one hit and fanned four batters in three innings yesterday but the Indians lost anyway, 7 to 6.

The Blues teed off the first two innings on Rookie Dewey Adkins for six runs and eight hits to pile up a lead which the Indians could not overcome.

A circus catch by Outfielder Buster Mills of Kansas City in the ninth inning of Orris Hockett's long drive cost Cleveland a chance to win the game.

The Indians play the Boston Braves here today.

Save It For Louis, Abe

Nope. Algernon, this isn't that boogey man you've always been afraid to meet in the dark. It's the fighting pan of one Abraham Simon, who somehow or other has been matched to meet Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis again in a title bout in New York, March 27. Simon stayed 13 rounds with Louis in Detroit the last time out before being floored for good.

Rookie Shines For Cincy Reds

TAMPA, Fla.—(UP)—The lusty clouting of rookie third baseman Bert Haas heartened the Cincinnati Reds today despite a 7 to 5 loss to the Boston Red Sox when two Redleg pitchers blew up in the last two innings.

Haas smashed out four safeties for a perfect day at bat including a triple and three singles. He poled a homer and a triple against Detroit on Saturday.

Joe Beggs and Gene Thompson were the victims of Boston's successful rally yesterday as the Sox scored five runs in the last two innings.

Both moundsmen were wild. Thompson made an impressive entrance after the Sox scored one run in the eighth. He relieved Beggs with the bases loaded and got Dom Di Maggio to hit into a double play. But Junior ascended the stratosphere in the next round. The Sox scored four times on three singles, two walks, and a wild heave by catcher Dick West.

Dodds Says He Ran Too Fast

Couldn't Maintain His Blistering Pace.

BOSTON—(AP)—Gil Godds, who has designs on Glenn Cunningham's magic mile, almost had the master's mark of 4:04.4 in his grasp but he realizes today that he missed out because he ran too fast.

The bespectacled theological student lost New York's Knights of Columbus mile by scant yards yards to Les MacMitchell but until the last lap he set a blinding pace which shattered all the fractional marks of Cunningham's studiously paced effort over Dartmouth's lightning fast track in 1937.

* * *

"I guess I ran that last lap five or six times slower than I did all the rest of them," Dodds confessed. "I just ran as fast as I could as far as I could."

Gil cut out a blistering pace which brought him to the quarter in 58.1 seconds. At Dartmouth Cunningham negotiated the quarter in his paced effort in 58.5 and that clocking almost scared him to death. So much so that he put on the brakes and reached the half in 2:02.5 while the scampering Dodds was timed in an amazing 1:59.7 for that distance. He went on to the three-quarter in 3:02.7 compared to Cunningham's 3:04.2.

But the last lap was the Waterloo for Dodds whereas Cunningham's blazing kick enabled him to knock out an almost perfect quarter in establishing the 4:04.4 mark.

Cleveland Team Leads Tourney

LIMA — (AP) — The Demshar Builders Class A team of Cleveland looked today like a safe bet to become the new Ohio women's bowling champion.

The Demshar's 2686 wasn't even threatened over the weekend as Pat's Champs of Cleveland, last year's title holders, rolled 2558, good only for a sixth-place tie with Dayton's Pepsi Colas in the five-woman team event.

Since only a few teams bowl in the final shifts next week-end, tournament observers predicted the laurels would go to the Demshars.

Tygers Scheduled at 7:40 Friday Night

Celina Meets Winner of Toledo Tourney Decided This Evening

Mansfield high school's Tygers meet Bowling Green in the opening game of the Findlay regional basketball tournament Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

The second game will pit Celina against the winner of the Toledo district tournament, which will be decided tonight between Toledo Central and Toledo Woodward.

The Toledo-Celina game is scheduled at 9 o'clock, and the championship game is booked at 8 o'clock.

* * *

Drawings for the tournament, to be held in Findlay high school gym, were made at Findlay yesterday afternoon, with Coach Vern Hoffman representing Mansfield at the drawing.

* * *

Mansfield's record of 18 victories and six defeats isn't so impressive compared with some others in the Findlay joust, but it must be remembered that Mansfield lost four of its first five games. The record from there on reads 17 wins and two losses.

Bowling Green, Tyger foe of Friday night, has won 17 games and lost three, and split even with Fremont, defeated in the Sandusky tournament by Mansfield.

Celina has the poorest record of any team in the Findlay tournament with 12 victories against 10 defeats, while the record for the regular season was eight victories and 10 defeats.

* * *

Toledo Central has won 25 games and lost two, while Toledo Woodward has taken 18 victories against two defeats.

* * *

A. N. Smith, one of the officials of the Sandusky tournament, will also toot a whistle at Findlay, along with Max Schaffer of Columbus Grove.

Admission price at Findlay will be 50 cents at the door, with no student tickets, no reservations, no season tickets, and no advance sale.

Bissman Birdie Brands scored a 2-1 victory at Marion and came home to chalk up another 2-1 win over Fostoria.

Eagles dropped a 1-2 decision to Sandusky and were blanked by Bucyrus. And Sandusky also defeated Liederkranz 2-1. Among the Sandusky keglers was Coach Glenwright of the Sandusky high school football team.

Best Mansfield score of the day was Johnny Leppo's 650. Art Hilborn had 644, Duke Weber 626, and Bill Donnellan 608.

Britain Plans To Reward Cats Who Do Their Duty

LONDON—(INS)—Even cats can be heroes in this war.

And every hero deserves a reward—even if he be a cat.

Britain's food minister has decreed that cats shall henceforth be rewarded for the war effort of ridding the county of its mice.

From now on, warehousemen are to be issued with special supplies of milk to be distributed to their rat and mice catchers.

The milk will be drawn from stocks that have been damaged during transit, or rendered inedible for human consumption by enemy action.

Cats who come under this new ruling must be engaged in keeping down mice and rats in warehouses in which at least 250 tons of food or animal feeding stuffs are stored.

There has been made a suggestion here, however, that if the cats are fed with milk, they won't be hungry; won't go after the rats; and so will cease to be national heroes.

Which, if true, should thoroughly complicate the matter.

Viscount Gort, British soldier, is a distant cousin of King George.

TEXANS READY TO SADDLE UP FOR CAMPAIGN

Shortage of Tires Causes Prospective Candidates Lot of Anxiety.

(By United Press)

AUSTIN, Tex. — Texas candidates are looking ahead and if it is necessary they are going to "saddle ol' Paint" to ride the political trails this summer.

This is election year and the automobile and tire shortage is causing a lot of anxiety among prospective candidates. The automobile is the favorite campaign vehicle in the biggest state in the union where population centers are far apart. Train and bus schedules are just another worry which candidates would rather dodge.

From Texarkana to El Paso, for instance, the distance is 821 miles and a candidate for state office has to visit both of those cities. From Texline in the northwest Panhandle to Brownsville on the state's southern tip, the highway route stretches 929 miles. A candidate could, as a matter of fact, ride 26,000 miles on state-designated roads alone without traveling the 190,000 miles of side roads to the "forks of the creek" from which Texas voters appear each election day.

Gov. Coke R. Stevenson hopes he will not have an opponent when he runs for a full, two-year term this summer. But he already has announced that he will match his riding ability with any ambitious politician's if the candidates have to campaign on horseback.

Stevenson is a rancher who still rides the ranges to inspect his herds in West Texas. He grew up in the ranch country and once was a freight-wagon driver.

"If my horse throws a shoe," the governor told capitol correspondents in a half-serious discussion of the campaign recently, "I'll guarantee you I can put one on again."

With that, Stevenson drew from his pocket a very large knife and demonstrated on an imaginary horse how one "retreads" a shoeless steed by first trimming the hoof.

The governor computed that a candidate could travel by horseback to each of Texas' 254 counties in eight and one-half months, stopping a day in each county. He figured that the office-seeker could ride 30 miles a day, after he became accustomed to the saddle, if he could find horses that would stand the pace.

Radio long has been a favorite medium for reaching Texas' scattered voting populace. W. Lee O'Daniel, former governor and now U. S. senator, was just a radio voice unknown to hundreds of thousands who voted for him in his first race four years ago. O'Daniel has maintained his radio contact with transcriptions sent from Washington and he is expected to run for election to a full six-year senatorial term this summer.

Death of Sen. Morris Sheppard of Texas last spring created a vacancy for which O'Daniel was chosen in a special election. That automatically elevated Stevenson from lieutenant-governor.

Stevenson is an adequate radio speaker, but he still prefers to campaign in the old way—traveling over the state and shaking hands with the people. He's ready if necessary, to "get a horse" this time.

Screen Actress Gives Hollywood Success Secret

HOLLYWOOD — (INS) — Hollywood success recipe:

"You've got to have nerve to get along."

It was put forth today by Janet Blair, who practices what she preaches.

She used to be a vocalist in the band of the late Hal Kemp. When he was killed in a traffic accident a year ago she decided to try to win a place in pictures, despite the fact that she had had no dramatic training.

She landed a screen job within three weeks and today she is a full-fledged leading woman, wooed by both Pat O'Brien and Brian Donlevy in his latest picture, Columbia's "Trinidad."

In Hollywood she is known for her calm assurance, but the actress says it's an acquired quality. She trained herself to be that way.

"If you have no confidence in yourself, who else is going to have confidence in you?" she asks by way of explanation.

JUDGE AROUSES ENGLISH WOMEN

Court's Remarks Cause of Consternation Among Feminine Sex.

(By United Press)

BRADFORD, Eng. — Giving judgment at Bradford county court against a doctor's wife who ordered a $240 fur coat without her husband's authority, Judge "Treat 'em Rough" Frankland said:

"I regret that an old English custom which gave a husband the right to chastise his wife is not still in operation. It appears to me that if a certain amount of appropriate chastisement were applied to this lady there might be a chance for her to live more happily than hitherto."

The judge said that he did not believe the woman, Mrs. Marjorie Garscadden, thought she really needed a fur coat—she already had one. She bought it either to cause her husband pain or distress, or with the idea of disposing of it later to get ready money for herself.

Dr. A. V. Garscadden said that he made his wife a dress allowance of from $4 to $5 a week. She had a Persian lambskin coat bought in December, 1939.

Mrs. Garscadden agreed to the immediate return of the coat, stay of execution being granted.

The judge's remarks stirred up some strong opposition from indignant women, including his own wife. Mrs. Frankland said:

"As to an alternative punishment for a foolish wife, I should not care to commit myself, but possibly her own conscience would be a punishment in itself.

Other comments were:

"Good Heavens, you can't have that sort of thing going on, especially when children are now brought up to believe in the equality of the sexes.

Celtuce, an Oriental lettuce, is now being grown in this country.

STOCK MARKET SEARCHES FOR RECOVERY NEWS

Mixed Price Changes Prove Rule In All Branches of Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market searched unsuccessfully for outstanding recovery news today and the result was slightly mixed price changes in most departments.

Mild early support was accorded American Telephone, General Motors, Anaconda, General Electric, Eastman Kodak and Pepsi-Cola. Numerous issues sold at Saturday's final levels and long-delayed openings were plentiful.

Lacking rising inclinations were U. S. Smelting, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Chrysler, American Smelting, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, United Aircraft and Sperry.

Losses of the United Nations in the Java sea battle, plus continued ship sinkings by enemy submarines in the South Atlantic, brokers thought, tended to dim speculative and investment sentiment. Some potential purchasers also held off pending more light on the forthcoming tax bill.

Market trend students scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said some steelmakers had reported less tonnage booked in the first two months of this year than during the like 1941 period. This was due, in part, it was explained, to the fact that a year ago many buyers for civilian production were seeking coverage, while now there is practically no pressure of that sort.

"Scrap supply," the publication added, "shows no essential change, better volume being received in some districts while others find receipts curtailed. Intensive efforts to uncover dormant tonnage continue along various lines and produce some results but total achievement is not impressive."

Japanese Medals Will Be Used To Make a Torpedo

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — (INS) — Japan will receive some nice scrap metal from the United States.

This time, it will be medals which the Nippon government vested upon eight Veterans of Foreign Wars members.

The medals will go into a torpedo, and all the veterans were hoping for a bulls-eye on the Jap target.

John J. Skillman, Miami undertaker, one of the eight VFW members who received the medals, started the drive. He telephoned Rep. James E. Van Zandt of Pennsylvania, who also received one of the Tokyo medals. They decided to call the others, have the Naval Ordnance department mold their medals into their most fitting form, and see that the torpedo head is placed aboard some American vessel operating in the Pacific.

NO SABOTAGE

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The war department stated today there is no evidence that sabotage caused the fire which destroyed an administration building at the new Basic Magnesium company plant at Las Vegas, Nev.

The army added that the fire destroyed only incomplete engineers' drawings and notes and did not interrupt work on the new defense plant.

THEATERS

"Ham" to Hitler.

A troupe of actors specializing in Shakespeare is compelled to give up their theatrical roles to play a far more exciting part in real life in Jack Benny's starring comedy, "To Be Or Not To Be." The change is made when the Nazis invade Poland and inspire Benny, the head of the company, to impersonate the leaders of the Third Reich from Hitler on down. Carole Lombard plays her last role opposite Benny in this production and the supporting cast includes Stanley Ridges, Robert Stack, and Lionel Atwill.

* * *

Broadway Flavor.

"Bedtime Story," the Fredric March-Loretta Young co-starring vehicle at the Madison, deals with the more humorous side of life among their theatrical great. Miss Young plays a Broadway actress unable to get her philandering playwright-husband to settle down while March enacts the husband bent on keeping his wife from wedding the other fellow after a divorce, is granted. Allyn Joslyn plays the other man and the cast includes Eve Arden and Robert Benchley. "Blondie Goes to College," with Penny Singleton is the co-attraction.

Welsh Drama.

"How Green Was My Valley," a stirring drama of life in a peaceful Welsh settlement, continues at the Ritz. Donald Crisp and Sara Allgood portray the heads of the family around whom the story revolves and Walter Pidgeon and Roddy McDowall are also featured.

Applications For Benefits Drop 52 Per Cent In February.

COLUMBUS, O.—(AP)— Unemployment compensation claims filed in Ohio during February totaled 23,095, a decrease of 52 per cent from January's 48,535 claims, Administrator H. C. Atkinson of the Ohio bureau of unemployment compensation announced today.

The average benefit check for a week's total unemployment reached a new high of $12.67 for the third consecutive month.

Benefit payments amounted to $2,063,954 in February, a gain of 7 per cent over January.

Atkinson attributed the increased amount of the average check to liberalization of the Ohio unemployment compensation law.

FIX BLAME IN RAIL ACCIDENT

Officials Say Failure of Trainmen To Receive Orders Caused Crash.

WAVERLY, Tenn.—(INS)—Railroad authorities today attributed a headon collision of a fast passenger train and a freight of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway near here yesterday to the failure of a member of the passenger train's crew to receive operation orders.

Four persons were killed and two injured.

The impact of the collision was so great, officials said, that several cars were hurled into a gulley, though none of the passenger cars was derailed and no passengers were injured.

TEST TACONITE FOR IRON ORE

Source Expected To Provide Substitute For Dwindling Top-Grade Deposits.

(By United Press)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Experimental drilling operations are underway in an effort to develop the vast, long-untouched taconite deposits as a substitute for Minnesota's dwindling iron ore supplies.

The project is designed to answer expert estimates that Minnesota's top-grade ore deposits will last only 19 years at the present consumption rate.

Experts believe there is enough taconite, a coarse, ore-bearing rock in the Mesabi range to last more than 1,000 years, if an economical process can be found to extract its iron ore content.

The Erie Mining company and the University of Minnesota have set up laboratories, under the direction of E. W. Davis, to work out a process patterned after a treatment being used for similar taconite deposits being mined in New York.

Four drilling crews have been engaged to sink shafts totaling more than 25,000 feet throughout the Mesabi area.

Davis explained that taconite never has been mined before in this region for two reasons:

(1) Because it was considerably easier, and less expensive, to take out high grade iron ore, which can be scooped away from surface pockets.

(2) Because Minnesota's iron ore tax made no distinction between taconite and cheaply-mined high grade ores. This was changed by the last state legislature, which reduced the tax on taconite to $1 an acre until it was mined, with a levy of five to six cents per ton on the ore concentrate made from it.

THREE RESIGN JOBS WITH WPB

Action of War Board Officials Brings Demands For Senate Committee Inquiry.

said that "nothing should be allowed to interfere with the war effort.

Sen. Herring (D.), Iowa, another member of the committee, indicated that the use of $1-a-year men may be probed. He also charged that Fraser M. Moffat, jr., head of the industrial alcohol division of the WPB, was blocking plans for greatly needed expansion of facilities to produce industrial alcohol for smokeless powder.

In his statement making "clear" the reasons for his resignation Guthrie said that "my efforts to hurry the conversion of as many industries as possible to the war effort were met with continued resistance within the war production board. Some press stories which have appeared have implied indiscriminate indictment by me of whole industries. This is untrue. Actually many of the industries with which it was my job to deal were willing to make any sacrifices that the war effort required."

Johnson Goes To India as Representative of FDR.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Louis Johnson, former assistant secretary of war, the White House announced today, will be a "personal representative of the president with the personal rank of minister" in India.

There was no explanation of the meaning of "personal rank of minister" except that Johnson would have an unofficial rather than an official title.

It was announced last week that Johnson would head a United States mission to India.
